

Project Crossovers

October 2013

There's been so much going on since I last blogged – our youth forum, Tempo are learning how to make podcasts with the expert guidance of Fiona Evans (ex-BBC Radio 4 y'know, only the very best for us thank you). We've also got ex Radio presenter, Dave England (you smooth talker you) helping with interviewing, editing and general brilliantness. Thanks to Fiona and Dave!

There's so much to it! From music beds to stings, features, Chloe's news round up, live music from Jam Band, interviews with PMZ staff, Jimmy's quirky questions – well, who'd believe there was so much to a podcast. We even learned what the word “podcast” came from ... any ideas? Well, it's Programme On Demand – so there you go, you learn something new every day don't you. At least we do in Tempo! Loving it!

Then our BIG BIG BIG piece of news is that we've been interviewing for two part time Apprentices! We had some absolutely lovely applicants, but why is it so difficult to shortlist and choose people? Horrible to have to turn eager people down too – that's the worst bit by far. However, I'm really excited as Lynsey Dart and Michael Fullerton will be joining us at the end of the week for their induction, and then they're coming along to their first Team Day on November 1st, where they'll meet all the PMZ staff.

I think they're going to be amazing –both of them are inspirational, caring people with a massive passion for music and a disability which hasn't stopped them doing anything they want to. I'm really pleased they're joining us and can't wait to get them in here! Watch out guys—PMZ is like no other place you've ever worked! (It's miles better).
